THE WEEK IN SOCIETY,

The season of teas, dinners and "at homes" may be said to be at an end. Of weddings there are sew yet to take place in the latter part of this month and the early part of June, but aside from these promised nuptial celebrations there is not to interest the fashionable world. Society's eyes and sympathies are centred on the country and eyes and sympathies are centred on the country and scashore, and many are the plans that are being made for the summer campaign. The few bright warm days of last week were thoroughly appre-elated and enjoyed by the members of the gay word, some of whom are still in the city and vary world, some of trips to the country-Tuxedo, West-the days with trips to the country-Tuxedo, West-chester, Hempstead and the many pleasant nearby places on the Hudson River-and pleasantly fill the enings with dinner, theatre and supper parties, A favorite diversion with many people of the fash-ionable world just now is to make trips on the coach Tempest from the Hotel Brunswick to the coach Tempest from the Hotel Brunswick to the coathy Club at Westchester, and of late the ceather has been most suitable for the purpose. Not in years before has any public coach running Not in years or of New-York enjoyed the popularity which has sen and is being accorded the Tempert. Since the rening trip the project of Messrs, Smith & Underin has been successful, and what is probably more atifying to the men interested, thoroughly prosrous. Places on the coach are in constant demand, ed the bookings have been made for weeks ahead and the theory L. Tevis had the Tempest yesterday for his own party. To-morrow Duncan Cameron and his guests will have it. D. Ogden Fowler has engaged it for Tuesday, William Augustus Read for Nednesday, and Mrs. George P. Andrews for Fri-it is feared that the annual parade of the Newyork Coaching Club, which will take place on May York Casesing Citto, which will take pince on May 31, will have a smaller number of coaches in line than for many years past. The meet will be held in Central Park, and the drive will be to Jerome-park, where luncheon will be served. The annual ane drive of the members of the New-York Coachog Club will this year be made on June 6 to Dr Seward Webb's country home, Shelburne Farms, It is proposed to make the entire journey, nearly 250 miles, by coach, and to cover the distance in four days. This trip will be the most interesting ever made by the members of the club as it is the longest ever attempted here. The abas it is the longest ever attempted here. The ab-sence of familiar faces in places frequented by peo-ple of fashion is explained by the continued exodus Europe, which this spring has exceeded anything known for many years. With the departure of each the large Atlantic steamships it seems as if all New-York were flocking to Europe, and in truth there is already an emptiness in society's ranks which causes one sometimes to wonder who will be here to make gay times at Newport, Bar Harbor, Narragansett Pier and a score of other fashionable resorts. That the salling of a steamship in these days of ocean travel should prove an event is a litday, when the White Star line steamship Teutonic put to sea with a strong contingent of the exclusive put to see held a reception previous to sailing. In the saloon there was ample evidence of the populartiy of some of these people, as there were several bushels of flowers and mounds of delicious fruits, On Wednesday Mrs. Heber R. Bishop, Miss Bishop, Miss Edith Bishop, Mr. and Mrs. William M. Kingsland, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Clarkson Pot-ter, Mr. and Mrs. Prescott Hall Butler, Mr. and Mrs. William Oothout, Mr. and Mrs. Karrick Riggs, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Tillinghast, Mr. and Mrs. John Sloan, Sir Tatton Sykes, Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Stuart, Mr. and Mrs. Richard McCreery, Mrs. Andrew B. Vanderbilt and Clarence Barker as their guests, for the purpose of making a tour of Russia and 5/part of the Holy Land, and cruising about the Mediterranean in a steam yacht chartered by they for several months, have changed their plans agnd have decided to sail from Liverpool with Mr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Vanderbilt, on the steamiship Teutonic, on May 16. They will go directly to Elm-court, their handsome estate at Lenox, and in August will be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Erederick Vanderbilt at their Newport home, Rough Point, which is now being prepared for its owner. Mr. and Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt are expected to arrive in their yacht Vallant about May 25. Mr. and Mrs. Vanderbilt will spend a few weeks at their place at Oak'lale, L. 1., before opening Mar-ble House, Newport. Mr. and Mrs. Cornellus Vanderbilt will go abroad in a short time to remain until the latter part of July, when they will return

Grand Prix, and will finish with a short visit to Homburg, before returning home about the middle

The Newport season is near at hand. Many cotin their homes in. Believue ave., and many more will arrive before the middle of the month. The outlook for tine season of 1894 is encouraging. It is rue that many of the habitues have gone abroa or are making preparations to do so, but it is equal ly true that most of those who will be absent dur ing the early part of the season will return in August or their places will be occupied by families who Coubtless will benefit the place as much as the former residents would be likely to in a pecuniary point of view. Among the absent ones will be several leaders of fashion, whose places it will be diffi-cult to fill, but Newport will be gay despite their absence and the dulness of business throughou land. It is also true that several prominen families are in mourning, and, of course, entertain there will be indoor and outdoor attractions suffi clent to make the pace lively, both night and day "fox" hunts, lawn tennis matches at the Casino,

Mrs. Ogden Goelst, who will come over for the Newport season. Society was set agog last week over the announcement of the marriage, over a year ago, of Miss Helen Schuyler Hurry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Abdy Hurry, of No. 20 West Seventeenth-st., to William Vandervoort Draper, son of George H. Draper, and grandson of the late Simeon Draper, Everybody believed that they were engaged, and that the wedding was yet to take place, so the published announcement that the courle had seen fit to suppose the season of the late of the suppose of the were they were quietly married by the Rev. Dr. S. M. Haskins, came as a complete surprise to their immediate family and their friends. This incident was the surprise of the week, and it is

C. O. ISELIN TO MARRY MISS GODDARD.

YORKER AND THE PROVIDENCE REILESS ANNOUNCED.

The formal announcement of the engagement of Miss Hope Goddard, the only daughter of Colonel and Mrs. William Goddard, of Providence, R. I. to C. Oifver Iselin, of this city, made yesterday by the young lady to her intimate friends here was scarcely a surprise, as the engagement had been reported for some weeks, and although its truth was denied by several members of the Iselin family, there were grounds for believing that Mr. Iselin had offered himself to the Providence beauty. Three or four days ago the rumor of the engagement was revived and openly discursed in many New-York drawing-rooms, as well as in several of yet been set for the marriage.

Miss Hope Goddard, who is about twenty-six years old, is a decided blonde, and extremely handsome. She made her appearance in New-York society about five or six years ago, and during her society about five or six years ago, and during her first winter here, when she was referred to as the "Maid of the Mill," as her father is the owner of many cotton mills in Rhode Island, she attended the Patriarens' and other fashionable bails and parties. Mas Goddard, from the time of her introduction here, had as many advantageous offers for her hand as any woman in the country. At one time it was reported that she was eagaged to marry James J. Van Alen, at whose beautiful place at Newport she and her mother always spent a portion of the summer. Miss Goddard will, on the death of her father, inherit something about $2.000. Her father, is a son of William Goddard, of Providence, who was a member of the firm of Brown, Ives & Goddard, which owned and controlled a large number of mills in Rhode Island. Colonel Goddard has political aspirations. He is a Republican, and always takes a prominent part in Rhode Island politics. Miss Goddard's mother was a Miss Jenekes, daughter of a prominent part in Rhode Island politics. Miss Goddard's mother was a Miss senekes, daughter of a prominent part in Rhode Island politics. Miss Goddard's mother was a Miss senekes, daughter of a prominent part in Rhode Island politics, who made a large fortune and lost it just before his deuth. Mrs. Goddard, who is also a handsome woman, is well known in New-York society.

Mr. Iselin is a son of Adrian Iselin, sr., and a

JOHN DREW SPEAKS A SPEECH.

John Drew ended his long run at Palmer's Theatr last night and entertained a large audience with a speech as follows: "The aweet sorrow of parting is again my portion, after a senson here of uneximpled success. For the last fourteen weeks, dur ing which we have played "The Butterflies," this theatre has been (I am happy and proud to say) filled always with audiences representing the Intelligence, as well as the fashion of the town. Indeed, it is my great delight to tell you that this my second season in New-York, has been even more prespectous than that of last year. This has been a splendid, a delightful compliment to me, for the which I have not adequate words to thank you. That I appreciate it, believe me. I shall return in September to New-York, to the beautiful Empire Theatre, with a new play. May I hope that the same meed of kindness and patronage you have given me here awaits me there in my future dramatic home. In the name of my company and myself, I thank you most sincerely for your kindness and for the present bid you a most reluctant farewell." theatre has been (I am happy and proud to say)

STEINITZ WINS AGAIN.

THE VETERAN PLAYED A SKILFUL AND AGGRESSIVE GAME.

HE HAS AN UPHILL ROAD, AS THE SCORE NOW READS: LASKER 7. STEINITZ 3, DRAWN 3-

LASKER'S MISTAKE WAS COSTLY. Montreal, May 5.-The rooms of the Cosmopolitan Club, in which W. Steinitz and E. Lasker are playng the championship chess match for $2,000 a side, were uncomfortably crowded this afternoon, when the latter opened the thirteenth game. It was on the cards that he would play another Ruy Lopez, and it was taken as a matter of course when the Teuton selected the Spanish attack. When the champion was called upon to defend 3... B-Kt 5, he looked a long time at the board, and the spectators did not know why he considered so long, for P-Q3 was expected, this being the de-fence invented by the champion, and a strategy by means of which he had won many games. At last he moved, and took everybody by surpasse, for he defended with 3 . . . P-Q R 3, a more which is greatly favored by all modern masters.

Lasker selected a variation which led to the exchange of Queens, that is to say, he offered the ex-change, and Steinitz did not object to the simplification of the position. After the development of some pieces, the latter eastled on the Queen's side, two noves later Lasker followed suit, using the King's Rook, and then the struggle for position ensued. With 17..., P.-B.5, the veteran initiated a combina-tion which gave him a strong attack at a cost of the Q.-B P or B.5, and shortly afterward the game was adjourned for luncheon, in a highly interesting position.

Lasker failed to make the best move at his twenty-first turn by taking the pawn. He should have played his Knight to Queen's fifth, which would have given him a good game. After this mistake Steinitz had his adversary at his mercy, and won in fine style, after fifty-six moves.

The score now reads: Lasker, 7; Steinitz, 3; drawn 2.

THE DRAMA.

AUGUSTIN DALY IN LONDON.

and "Daly's Theatre in Leicester Square" has been established as a high-class place of amusement, there to remain and flourish. The success thus obtained by the leader of the American stage was not accomplished without a hard struggle. Many obstacles had to be overcome, and much opposition, on the part of theatrical managers and newspapers, had to be met and baffled. London is a delightful place to the visitor, but it is an inhospitable place to the foreign rival in business enterprise. Mr. Daly's object was to establish a theatre in London, in which he could present his company during two months of each year, and which could advantageously be rented, for other performances, during the rest of the time. By that means he could be sure of a suitable place for his annual professional visit to the English capital, without payment of an exorbitant rent, and could surround himself with everything needful for the adequate and suitable presentation of his plays and actors. That enterprise, obviously, was one to alarm managers already in possession of the London field, and it has not engaged their good-acted fourteen times. "The Hunchback" was then valuable. Thus there are in numbers, viz.: Aitdorfer, presented, and had seven performances. "Love in 25; Berghem, 40; Cantarini, 50; Albert Durer, 150; Goltfollowed, and was played twenty-one Tandem" times. 'Dollars and Sense' had fourteen repre-sentations; "The Foresters," fifteen; "The Last Word," seven; "The School for Scandai," forty-nine; "The Country Girl," seven; after which, on nine; The Country Girl," seven; after which, on January 8, 1894, "Tweifth Night" was producedsits Ada Rehan making a brimant and memorable hit as Vola—and that comedy ran till late in April.

"As You take It" was revived April 23, to close the season with as much as possible of sparkling and pungent mirth. The pieces presented were mainly of the highest order, and all of them good. The authors chiefly interpreted were Shakespeare, wycherley, Sheridan Knowies and Tennyson. The conspicuous successes of Miss Rehan were Lady Teaze and Viora—and no fact could more eloquently denote the versatile capacity of that remarkable actress. A considerable part of the London public seems to have been sympathetic with the American manager from the first, but it was not until he made his lovely revival of "Tweifth Night" that the ice of social reserve was completely thaved, and the constraint of critical reincurace dispelied. Upon the excellence of that revival all nathorities are agreed. The public support, furthermore, was munificent, and after some experience of bad business, Mr. Dally had the reward of much prosperity, and with that his season closes.

This is not the first time that Mr. Dally has led closes.

This is not the first time that Mr. Daly has led the way.—for, as old play-goers will remember, he has three times established his theatre in New-York, and each time with lavish expenditure of effort. Twenty-three pieces, three of them Snakespears's, were produced by him during the first season of the first Fifth Avenue Theatre, in Twenty-fourthst, in 189-70, and during the first season of the first Fifth Avenue Theatre, in Twenty-fourthst, in 189-70, and during the first season of the first Fifth Avenue Theatre, in Twenty-fourthst, in 189-70, and during the list season of the present Daly's Theatre fifteen plays were represented; so that, after all, the task has been accomplished with rather less effort in London than in New-York. Henceforward, in matters of art, the two capitals will be nearer together than they have ever hitherto been. English actors are always hospitably welcomed in America, and those who are proficient in their art are successful. American actors should equally be welcome in England,—and, with the public, those of genatine worth ever have been. The establishment of Daly's Theatre in London is certainly a cosmopolitan inversent—providing a place where the great players of all nations may from time to thus appears for all mations may from the Salderi Theatre, Venice, will act there on May 7, and Sarzh Hernhardt, with a French company, will secuply that stage on June 18. Mr. and Mrs. Daly proceed to Paris this week, and will sail for New-York on August 4 together with Miss Reaan and Mrs. Gibert, and the Baly Company will not again appear in London till the early summer of 1896. An affectionate welcome awaits Miss Rehan and her associates here, and, as always happens in such cases. Mr. Daly's Success abroad will strengthen his hooks. This is not the first time that Mr. Daly has led
